MEAD'S FERRY ITEMS.

Democratic Pole Raising.—The Telegraph and English pole raising took place at the public house of Christian Uffelman, Lancaster county side. Democrats in this section are very enthusiastic and confident of the success of the national ticket.

The A. & P. Telegraph Co. are renewing this line which passes this place, putting up new poles and four new wires. They have twenty men here now. On Saturday they had a vote on the presidential question resulting in sixteen votes for Hancock and English and four for Garfield (Penningtonville) Arglen. In this place, the Democrats seem confident of success, but that they seldom met a Garfield man; if any were present they kept very low. The Western Union Telegraph Co. have opened offices along the line of the Columbia and Port Deposit railroad for commercial business.

The river is very low here now, bass fishing is rather good.

There was an unusually full attendance at the meeting of the Democratic county committee this morning. The only business transacted was the assessment of the candidates and a slight assessment upon the several districts for the expenses of the campaign; the hearing of the reports from the several districts which were uniformly favorable to the prospects of a full poll in the Democratic vote and no defection from the Hancock ranks; a general disposition was made to hold few meetings prior to October 1st at least; the vacancy on the Assembly ticket from the upper district caused by the withdrawal of Amos Diller was filled by the nomination of Col. The Lancaster Explosion.

Brief mention was made in Saturday's INTELLIGENCER of the explosion of a vulcanizer in the office of Dr. J. B. McCaskey, whereby his little son, aged about 13 years, was severely injured. The vulcanizer is an upright copper tube or boiler, about eight inches in height and four inches in diameter, and is used for heating and hardening by steam pressure the rubber or vulcanite plates upon which artificial teeth are mounted. The boiler is furnished with a mercurial gauge to enable the operator to know exactly how much pressure is in the boiler. At the time of the accident Dr. McCaskey, his little son, his brother J. Newton McCaskey, and his student, James Sullivan, were in the room. The gauge registered the proper pressure on the boiler and all appeared to be going on well, when a fearful explosion occurred. The copper boiler was torn and twisted into shreds. One fragment of it struck Master McCaskey on the back of the neck, just below the base of the skull, making a wound some three inches in length, and so deep that the large sinners of the neck is entirely severed. The train is not injured, but the wound is nevertheless a very dangerous one. Smaller fragments of the copper inflicted less dangerous wounds on his head.

Mr. Sullivan, who was standing some distance away, was struck in the left breast by a fragment of the exploded vulcanizer, but was not seriously hurt, the missile striking just directly over his watch and crushing the case and ruining the works.

Now, McCaskey, who was sitting close beside the vulcanizer, escaped unhurt, a nail near the head of Dr. McCaskey and passed out of the window. Another imbedded itself in the ceiling, and still others damaged the walls and doorways.

Dr. McCaskey can give no plausible reason for the cause of the explosion, but he is amply strong to carry the pressure to which it was subjected, but to avoid the possible recurrence of such an accident, he will build outside his vulcanizer a heavy case made of boiler iron.
